LOCATION

Livorno Municipality of Tuscany (104.5 km² with 157.783 inhab. In 2019), provincial capital. It is located on the Tyrrhenian Sea, at the southern end of the Arno coastal plain, 15 km from the mouth of the river. Following the urban expansion of the capital around the original nucleus and along the coast to the Romito cliffs, the villages of Ardenza and Antignano are an inseparable whole with it. The splendid "Terrazza Mascagni" which overlooks the sea and the islands of the archipelago with fiery sunsets and the 'ancient' neighborhood, characteristic of Venice, a part of the city crossed by the ditches, that is the canals where the sea water flows and it insinuates itself forming waterways daily crossed by boats as if they were normal roads. A very different face compared to the more modern part of the city, a mix that gives Livorno an authentic character that is still little inflated by tourism.
